

2010 JCR Data Updates

After JCR data are published, there are some journals that require adjustments to the published metrics.

In order to make these important data available with all possible speed, we include below a list of the journals that will receive new metrics when data are reloaded in September. This section of the Notices file will be updated weekly between now and September.

The 2010 JCR Web data will be reloaded in September to reflect any necessary updates and to fully incorporate all new data in the category and network metrics.

* The journals NANOSCALE and ANALYTICAL METHODS were originally posted with over-estimated values for the Journal Impact Factor. The original values posted were: NANOSCALE Journal Impact Factor = 7.000; ANAL METHODS-UK Journal Impact Factor = 1.450. We regret this error and appreciate the cooperation of the Royal Society of Chemistry in noting the corrected data.
